QUEER COAL DEAL IN SUPREME COURT

Argument Heard on Two FOR SALE-Steinway square plano, $25; sew ing machine, $3; oil paintings, cheap. 132 W st. nw. Railroads' Contract.

DISCRIMINATION IN RATES

Defendants Are Chesapeake and Ohio and New York and New Haven Companies.

Arguments were heard in the Supreme regard to a transaction between the Chesapeake and Ohio rallway and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, said to constitute one of the most adroit devices for the granting of rebates ever invented.

The case is brought under the Elkins act. The arguments today were presented by some of the heavyweights of the legal profession. The Interstate by Assistant Attorney General J. C. John W. Griggs and Senator John W. Daniel of Viriginia, are among the attorneys for the railroads.

Strike Caused Tangle.

The contract, which has been made the basis of this proceeding, originated in 1896, when the Chesapeake and Ohio made an arrangement with the New York, New Haven, and Hartford to furnish the latter 400,000 tons of New River bituminous coal a year, at a price of $2.75 per ton. The contract could not be empleted because of the coal miners'

At that time, there remained yet un-selivered 59,966 tons. The New Haven road subsequently rendered a bill against the Chesapeake and Ohio for sgainst the chesapears and only to $103,910, for the excess over contract price paid by the former for bituminous coal, "purchased outside to make good shortage on contract."

Made New Contract.

The Chesapeake and Ohio, being un able to supply New River coal, made a verbal arrangement with the New Havreleasing it from the payment of 103,910 on condition that the Chesapeake and Ohio deliver the balance due in Kanawha coal, an inferior article. In May, 1903, it commenced the delivery to complete the shortage. It had delivered 28,224 tons, when further shipments were stopped by proceedings brought before the Interstate Commerce Commission by W. C. Bullitt, a Philadelphia coal broker.

Discrimination.

Bullitt claimed that the Chesapeake and Ohio, charged him $1.45 a ton for carrying coal from the Kanawha region to Newport News; that this was far in excess of what it was charging the New Haven by the terms of its new contract, by which practically 60,000 tons were to be delivered for $103,910 less than the price of $2.75 a ton.
